For the second straight year, profits are up at Edina Liquor. That means more money pouring back into the community to support Braemar Arena, Centennial Lakes Park, Braemar Golf Course and other Edina enterprise facilities. In their heyday, Edina Liquor’s three stores generated about $15 million annually in profit. The arrival of Total Wine and other factors pushed that number to as low as $650,000 in 2015. Some smaller liquor operations around the Twin Cities closed shop, but Edina leaders saw opportunity. They even set a lofty goal of $1 million in profits in 2017.

Edina Liquor is working with Vine Lab Wine & Spirits to help boost staff knowledge to a much higher level and improve customer service. “Now we are applying those same expertise,” Furbish said. “For the quarter.

Changes to the Spring Sale format, including flash sales and rotating weekly sales, drove an increase in traffic and profits about 130 percent compared to the same period in 2017. General Manager of Liquor Operations Josh Furbish, hired in December 2016, and his team made multiple changes to improve marketing, cut product costs by $250,000 in 2017. Steering away from traditional advertising in print to more social media helped customers. From traditional advertising in print to more social media marketing decreased costs about $60,000 while boosting traffic and effectiveness. Stores opened an hour later to help offset costs of adding Sunday sales.

“Increasing property values continues to be the primary reason why Edina’s taxes are the lowest somewhat” high compared with neighboring cities. “The major focus of 2017 was operational effectiveness,” Furbish said. The result: $1,007,000 profits in 2017. That’s more than $200,000 above the 2016 profits. 2018 looks even better. First-quarter profits were up about 130 percent compared to the same period in 2017. Changes to the Spring Sale format, including flash sales and rotating weekly sales, drove an increase in traffic and profits for the quarter. “The Spring Sale went great. We had a 15 percent increase in traffic,” Furbish said.

Edina Liquor reorganized in 2017, switching to a centralized business model and coordinated purchasing. Inventory practices were improved and operations streamlined. These moves cut product costs by $250,000 in 2017. Steaming away from traditional advertising in print to more social media marketing decreased costs about $60,000 while boosting reach and effectiveness. Stores opened an hour later to help offset costs of adding Sunday sales. Customers who direct sales changes in 2018 from the button- down shirts of Edina Liquor store staff to the launch of free home delivery. A customer loyalty program is also in the works. Edina Liquor is working with Vine Lab Wine & Spirits Academy out of St. Paul to help boost staff knowledge to a much higher level and improve customer service.

“We’ve always been known for our wine selection and expertise,” Furbish said. “Now we are applying those same strategies to spirits and beer.”

Edina Liquor stores are located at 3143 W. 51st St., 5123 Vennon Ave., and 6.75 York Ave. For more information, contact Furbish at (651)928-5722 or 952-826-0373.

Edina Aquatic Center Installs New Water Playground in 2017

With its children, friends Mike Laux and Dietrich Nissen enjoy the water playground that was added to the Edina Aquatic Center last year, replacing a play structure that was 20 years old. The Edina Aquatic Center will celebrate its 60th anniversary this year from July 9 to 14 and is open for the season through Aug. 19.

The strong tax base in Edina continues to grow because of the appreciation in existing property values and the new construction,” said City Assessor Bob Wilson.

However, there’s a common misconception among residents that taxes in Edina are much higher than surrounding communities. According to the City’s biennial Quality of Life Survey administered in 2017, 58 percent of residents responded they feel property taxes are “very” or “somewhat” high, compared with neighboring cities.

“Increasing property values continues to be the primary reason why Edina’s taxes are the lowest compared to our neighboring communities,” said Finance Director Don Uram. “Redevelopment within the City has contributed to this increase giving Edina the fourth largest tax base in the state. The City Council’s and staff’s commitment to prudent fiscal management and continued long-term financial planning is also important.”

The only other cities with larger tax bases in the state are Minneapolis, St. Paul and Bloomington.

Residents also pay property taxes to Hennepin County, their local school district and watershed district. For more information, contact Uram at 952-826-0373.
Race & Equity Task Force Makes Recommendations

In early 2017, the City organized a Race & Equity Task Force to make recommendations on policies, practices and strategies to identify and eliminate race-based disparities in City facilities, services and institutions.

“The City is part of a larger community initiative to take a deeper look at race and equity in Edina. We are examining whether or not our City government policies, practices and operations create disparate outcomes for people of differing racial groups,” said City Manager Scott Neal when the initiative was launched. “If we are finding disparate outcomes, we are committed to discovering why and what can be done to correct that.”

The Task Force was comprised of nine community members also who were involved in working groups that reviewed practices and procedures for City services, facilities and institutions. Staff represented a variety of facilities and departments also served on each working group. Members of the Task Force were co-chair James Pierce, co-chair Jessi Kingston, Katherine Bass, Leonel Dorvil, Thuy Anh Fox, Ramla Hasanali, Michelle Meek and Christina Smith. Working group members included Al Alexander, Sharon Allison, Erica Aderburg, Pat Asarewaa, Dawn Berkel, Arnie Blyogle, Chris Bremer, Jeff Broen, Valerie Burke, Randolph Cooper, Kelly Cartin, Jane Yoshinari Davis, Heather Edelson, Brian Hubbard, Ana Munro, Daniel Nye, Kamala Purnen, Eric Rehm, Elena Brito Sifferlin and Noah Silver.

Several community and small-group gatherings, one-on-one interviews and an online survey were held to gather community perspective and feedback in order to develop recommendations in five key areas. Those areas are:

- Actively foster a community culture that goes beyond racial inclusion and generates a sense of belonging for all.
- Visibly demonstrate our commitment and accountability to eliminate racial inequities and create an inclusive and engaged community.
- Ensure our policies and procedures eliminate practices that may create or perpetuate racial inequities.
- Implement changes in our community that focus on building relationships with people of color.
- Improve the ability to leverage data and analytics to drive desired outcomes.

“Culture is defined as a set of shared values, behaviors and beliefs that are practiced. Our history shows that we have established norms that, if not challenged, will continue to impact our goal, to achieve Edina’s goal, to foster an inclusive and engaged community,” said Pierce. “We believe that executing all of these recommendations will not only set us on the right track, but will over time establish new norms that will help our culture continue to thrive.”

After reviewing and receiving the recommendations at the May 15 Council Meeting, the City Council directed staff to evaluate the feasibility and advisability of implementing the recommendations and report back with the results of their evaluation in September.

“I think everyone should read this report to understand why it’s so important. I think we’re talking about the end of a step, but the work has to start now. To diminish the work that’s already been done, we’re just starting and we have to be diligent about the next steps, ” said Council Member Rick Mavor.

2017 Was Record-Setting Year for Building Permit Revenue

Building permits give residents and contractors assurance a home or building is safe from electrical and heating system fire hazards, structural failure and other health risks. The building permits residents and contractors were issued in 2017 brought in more than $5.3 million in revenues to the City. This compared to roughly $5.1 million in 2016.

Though permit fees account for the largest percent of the City’s revenue outside of property taxes, Chief Building Official David Fisher will tell you the most important thing about the building permit process is the safety it ensures the city’s residents and visitors — not the revenue.

“Inspections protect the public and welfare of the city,” he said. “That’s our No. 1 priority.”

There are important financial benefits as well. While the City budgets conservatively for building permit revenue, any surplus is combined with other revenue sources to finance other capital investments. It also helps to offset the costs of doing multi-year inspections on larger projects that take more than a year to finish.

“The revenues brought in from permits and other sources help the City maintain a moderate tax rate compared to other metro communities while continuing to provide a high level of service,” said Finance Director Don Uram. “The additional tax base resulting from increased property values from improvements is also beneficial in that it helps to moderate any future property tax increases.”

The increase in building permits shows more houses are being improved and built, and commercial redevelopment is taking place at a higher rate. The revenues brought in by building permits in 2017 more than double the revenues delivered to the City in 2009 when permit revenue was just north of $2 million.

Building permit cost is based on the valuation of the project for which the permit is being issued. The two largest projects the Building Division inspected in 2017 were The Onyx and The Loden. The Onyx on York Avenue was completed in late 2017. The 244-unit complex was valued at $44.9 million. The Loden, a luxury apartment building on Lincoln Drive, was completed this summer. The valuation of the 246-unit development was roughly $36 million.

“Large projects, such as the recent luxury apartment buildings that went up, contribute a substantial amount toward the permit revenues,” said Fisher. “They keep our department busy.”

Both the Finance Department and the Building Inspections Division agree the high numbers of permits won’t stay this way forever, but the foreseeable future looks promising.

“There are peaks and valleys all the time. In Edina, the highs and lows aren’t as dramatic,” said Fisher. “The next couple of years look pretty good for continued growth.”

Braemar Golf Course Bustling Even Before New Course Opens

Overall Improvements Still Running Under Budget

The construction crews are done transforming the existing 27-hole golf course into a new 18-hole championship course with multiple playing options for golfers of all ages and abilities.

Now golfers just have to wait for the grass to grow while the builder wraps up a few punch list items. The new Braemar Golf Course Championship 18 Course will open in Spring 2018, after the grow-in phase of the project ensures a solid foundation to play upon.

The total project to rebuild the Championship 18 plus add and improve amenities around the Braemar Golf Course facility is still running under the $7.5 million projected cost and is expected to come in under budget, General Manager Joe Abood said.

That is despite the very rainy and wet 2017 that forced a delay of the opening date. Because of that delay, course builder Mid-America Golf and Landscape agreed to make up $250,000 worth of what it termed “project betterments.”

“We asked them to give us some upgrades for the project,” Abood said.

Part of the financial challenge over the next few months is caring for a golf course that isn’t bringing in any revenue. Grounds crews must groom and maintain the Championship 18, despite no play, just like they do the popular Academy 9 Par 3 Course to ensure it gets well established.

Those expenses were planned for all along. And in the gap before, plenty is happening at Braemar Golf Course. A new multi-use turf area was next to the new Clubhouse and will house the banquet space.

In addition, the Clubhouse pro shop was remodelled this year and golfers will soon get new chipping and bunker greens to try out.

“We always have a lot going on,” Abood said. “People should drop by and see for themselves.”

Braemar Golf Course is located at 6034 John Harris Drive. For more information, visit BraemarGolf.com. To keep current on news and hole updates, sign up for emails at EdinaMN.gov/City/Edina.

Detailed in the graphs provided are the 2016 and 2017 total revenues and expenditures for all the governmental funds. Expenditures are presented by function, while revenues are presented by category. At the end of each fiscal year, revenues and expenditures totaled $65,790,235 and $58,428,546, respectively, for an overall increase in fund balance before other financing sources of $3,361,489. Expenditures came in 2 percent, or $1,447,294, lower than 2016. The decrease is attributed to $1,250,000 of affordable housing revenue generated in 2016 as a result of redevelopment; no such amounts were received in 2017. Offseting the decrease is an increase in tax collections of $2,403,370, primarily due to an increased general fund operating levy that provides funding to continue existing service levels. In addition, tax increment collections increased by $643,801, primarily due to increased collections from the Southdale 2 tax increment financing district. Taxes, which are made up of property, franchise, and lodging taxes, remain a heavily relied-on revenue source for governmental operations, making up 58 percent of all governmental fund revenues.
